

SUMMARY

The text briefly presents the Danish context of cultural historical images as the informative background to the presentation of the holdings in Aalborg City Archives. After a general presentation of the archives, focus will move on to the management of the images, simultaneously revealing glimpses into Danish photographic history seen from the provincial town of Aalborg and with an outlook to current questions related to photography.