

Res'pir

a quality charter for outdoors and nature tourism

As part of the European project Res'pir, the city of Girona is working closely with its French partners in the Ariège region to develop a procedure on quality for and active and nature-based tourism. It aims to ensure quality standards for these activities, in line with the three axes of sustainable tourism (economic, social and environmental). Throughout 2012, companies in the active and nature-based tourism industry appearing in this catalogue have been working together to define a series of objectives to ensure that visitors enjoy authentic, unforgettable and quality experiences in the great outdoors.
